

October 14, 2009

To Whom It May Concern:

The AIA Dallas Associates Committee is hosting an Architecture Career Day event entitled, "2 B an Architect" for area high school students. You may remember our efforts with this program from years past. This event will be Saturday, November 21st, 2009 at the new Center for Architecture in Dallas, TX, from 1-4pm. We are hoping for a number of students and we would like to have as much participation as possible.

The events of the day will begin with a panel discussion including a group of professionals (at various stages in their careers). This discussion is a great opportunity for the high school students and their parents to discuss aspects of the profession, what life is really like in this profession, and what to expect from their education. This is an interactive session to allow as much information as possible to be revealed and shared.

The next part of the day will be an informal college fair with representatives from the architecture programs of various colleges and universities.

We are extremely excited about this event. The young students of today are the future of our profession and we would like for them to be well armed in the pursuit of their future. If you are interested in attending this program or helping us get the word out to students, please post the enclosed flyers and announce to your students this great opportunity.

For further questions, please contact John Westbrook at john.westbrook@corgan.com (214) 757-1833, or Ania Deptuch at ania.deptuch@aiadallas.org.

Sincerely,

Carmen L. Madden, LEED® AP
AIA Dallas Associates Committee